ENHANCE YOUR BOOK CLUB

1. Taking inspiration from restrictions on newspapers like the Oak Ridge Journal during wartime, try writing a censored news story about your book club meeting. The catch: the words book, author, and reading are censored and cannot be used in your article!
2. Listen to a recording of President Harry Truman's radio address announcing Japan's surrender at the end of World War II: <http://millercenter.org/president/speeches/detail/3341>.
3. In tribute to Kattie's homemade biscuits baked in Willie's hut, cook up a batch of Southern-style biscuits for your book club meeting! Try this simple recipe: <http://www.foodnetwork.com/recipes/paula-deen/biscuits-recipe/index.html>.
4. Set the mood to discuss The Girls of Atomic City with the popular Johnny Mercer tune "Accentuate the Positive": <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=f3jdbFOidds>
5. Visit Denise Kiernan's interactive website, www.girlsofatomiccity.com, for a wealth of documents, photos, songs, and more related to the Oak Ridge workers' contributions to the Manhattan Project.
